RESEARCH INTERESTS

I am primarily interested in the ethnohistorical examination of military conflict and cooperation between the Native peoples of North America and European colonial powers. More generally, I am interested in Native American and early American history with particular emphasis on the Revolutionary Era and the Early Republic. Within the field of military history, my research has focused on “small wars” involving irregular forces and U.S. defense policy. I am currently working on a military history of Indian Removal in the southeastern United States.
