

GOTHAM

THE FALL
FASHION
ISSUE

STAGE SIREN

SIENNA MILLER TAKES TO BROADWAY IN AFTER MISS JULIE

THE SIXTH ANNUAL

100

BEST-DRESSED
NEW YORKERS

CFDA WINNER
ANNA SUI'S NEXT STEPS

RJ CUTLER TAKES US INSIDE VOGUE

SCOTT SCHUMAN'S STREET STYLE

HOW GUEST CONTRIBUTORS VERA WANG
AND OSCAR DE LA RENTA SUPPORT THE CITY

gottham-magazine.com
NICHE MEDIA HOLDINGS, LLC

Susie Cover in the kitchen at Susie's Supper Club

Susie on Speed Dial

Big, grown-up flavors for the crust-eschewing set

IF YOU CAN'T BEAR to watch your tots munch one more mystery chicken finger or dreary grilled cheese with the crusts cut off, fear not. Chef Susie Cover (along with co-owners Claude Wasserstein, Marcia Mishaan and Samantha Schweitzer) has found the key to the culinary disconnect that so many parents experience with their finicky offspring. After four years as a private chef for a family with three wee ones, trial and error taught her that it's not so much that kids don't like vegetables or sauces or certain meats, it's more about presentation—or, in some instances, super-big or boozy flavors that leave petite palates cold. Susie's Supper Club deals in daily deliverable menus featuring ingredients often culled from organic or local purveyors, like Satur Farms on the North Fork. Dishes include such swoon-worthy (and soundly nutritious) options as tender boeuf bourguignon (sans mushrooms and wine—frequent tot-offenders), halibut steaks in a crunchy potato crust and a simple but dreamy lasagna with fresh mozzarella and house-made pasta. (Sides and desserts are available too.) Order by 5 PM the day before and Cover will deliver for the kids only (individual five- to nine-ounce servings, $8–$12). You can also opt for a healthy two-course family-style bonanza (serves four; $21–$23 per serving), something along the lines of chicken tikka masala with basmati rice and pan-seared broccoli, followed by brownies. Susie's Supper Club, 347-529-5259; susiessupperclub.com—AMY ZAVATTO

Art folio by The Piggy Story

Back-to-School Surprises

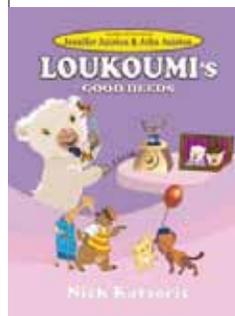

Fun treats for children of any age

Preschool

Send your tot off with the comforts of home—like his or her very own art folio by The Piggy Story ($20). Also look for backpacks and carry-all caddies in a range of designs, from piggy fairies to piggy pirates. Pumpkin, 334 Bleecker St., 212-352-0109

Kindergarten

After a day away, snuggle up with your little one to read Loukoumi's Good Deeds by Nick Katsoris (Dream Day Press/NK Publications; $15.95).

Follow along with a bonus CD, narrated by Jennifer Aniston and featuring the voices of Olympia Dukakis, Gloria Gaynor and Constantine Maroulis. ($2 per book is donated to St. Jude Children's Research Hospital.) Barnes & Noble locations citywide

Grade School

Kamibashi takes backpack accessorizing to a new level with its String Doll Gang ($10 each). Each doll is handmade in Thailand from a single continuous piece of string. Kids express themselves with the character of their liking, such as Dexter (PICTURED), Marie Antoinette and Kosmic Ken. MoMA Store and Ricky's locations citywide

PHOTOGRAPH BY SARI GOODRIEN (SUSIE COVER)

The latest fashion trends and features in HELLO!. Have a look at the high street must-haves, celebrities fashion and all the style secrets from the Royal family. HELLO! is the ultimate destination for the best royal fashion news; from the Duchess of Sussex's most recent outing to the Duchess of Cambridge's style secrets, we have it all! As well as the latest from the royal family, you can find exciting fashion news that you NEED to know about, the high street must-haves AND the latest celebrity fashion. Fashion. A candid conversation with Richard Malone on value, sustainability and the pressure young designers feel today. By Emily Farra24 April 2020. Fashion. Trend forecasters predict a more trendless future. By George Arnett20 April 2020. Fashion. Despite risks, independent designers see a silver lining in lockdown. By George Arnett10 April 2020. Fashion. The Indian fashion industry's fight against Covid-19. Fashion photographers and creatives face uncertain futures. By Lucy Maguire6 April 2020.