Stanislaus County 4-H Loses a Great Leader/Advisor

Roberta Fay Ellis passed away on January 10, 2011, at the age of 78. Known affectionately as “Robbie,” she came to Stanislaus County as 4-H

Advisor in 1971, where she devoted the last 20 years of her Youth Development career to making the best better for 4-H members, families, and communities. Robbie grew up in 4-H in Riverside County, and was one of the state’s first Diamond Stars (now called State Ambassadors). A woman of exceptional intelligence and resolve, she committed a good portion of her creative energies to preparing and guiding volunteer 4-H leaders to be professional quality partners in program delivery.

Robbie was a master at using personal and institutional resources effectively and efficiently to maximize results, serving as a superior example of what she wanted the rest of us to learn. The best evidence of this can be seen in the raising of her own two children as a single mom. Both her daughter and son graduated from the US Naval Academy and have successfully pursued remarkably challenging careers. All who worked with her knew that her standards and expectations of us were mighty high, but she also knew when to pause, reflect upon, and honor the fruits of our labors. Well respected for her creative intellect by her peers and supervisors, Robbie was commissioned to write California’s first statewide 4-H leader orientation manual. For her lifetime achievements in 4-H, Robbie received the Distinguished Service Award at a National 4-H Extension Professional Association annual meeting (NAE4-HA), and was awarded Emeritus status by the University of California upon retirement.

While carefully guiding a county program and honing the quality of statewide programming, Robbie didn’t seek the limelight. Her rewards came in seeing the results of effective 4-H programs, that is, members and adult volunteers developing their capacities to contribute to and lead a healthy, vibrant society. Those whose privilege it was to know and work with her know the extent to which our current policies and programs reflect her gift of intellect, strength of character, and sense of purpose. Grateful for this legacy, we still will miss her always interesting and deeply caring companionship.

It should not be a substitute for another kind of presentation, such as a demonstration or illustrated talk.

Demonstrations and illustrated talks using alternatives to poster boards, such as PowerPoint, should not enter this category.

The participant is responsible for the complete production process including the layout, scripting, picture taking/taping, and editing. PRESENTATION CATEGORY: EDUCATIONAL DISPLAY

An educational display is an organized visual presentation of a program or a concept. A display should be designed to convey its message in a limited amount of time. Educational displays do not include science fair exhibits, other depictions of processes, project exhibits or collections.

Educational Displays may exhibit one of the following display formats:

Card Table Display (approximately 30" x 30") This format will feature a tri-fold poster board that includes a title, the member's name and 4-H affiliation, and a depiction of the program or concept. The table may be used as part of the display.

Panel Display (approximately 4' x 4') The panel is presented vertically on an easel. The display will include, as a minimum, a title, the member's name and 4-H affiliation, and a depiction of the program or concept.

Speakers are expected to introduce the educational display with a prepared oral presentation including the title, information about how the speaker belongs to 4-H, how the display is relevant to his/her 4-H experience, and an overview of the display.

Topics that the speaker may want to include in the overview: the intended audience for the display; what ideas that the presenter hopes the viewer will learn from the display; and where the display may be used. The speaker should not read the display to the judges and not repeat the steps presented in the display.

This is a public speaking contest so the speaker should use the time wisely and support the visual presentation. Once the speaker completes the oral presentation he/she will have a dialog with the judges about the display.

Speakers may not use notes during the presentation of the display to the judges. The display should provide any necessary prompting.

WHOSE RECORD?

The 4-H record book is intended to be a full and accurate representation of the member's participation and achievement in 4-H. The suggestions in the article, "Building a Record Book" are designed to guide members toward this goal.

Understanding the importance of record keeping, learning the techniques, and becoming disciplined to keep records are assets we aim to instill in members. Except where a disability requires direct assistance, members must do their own work! Especially when competition (real or imagined) is involved, some adults can forget whose program and record it is and hijack the members' own experiences.

When members submit a record book that reports exaggerated performance and was prepared by someone else, it can have adverse effects. For example, members may:

- Get the message that what they do is not good enough or that they are not good enough to do their own work.
- Begin to blur the line between reality and fantasy and come to think that they actually did do the work (and though they live the lie, they remain uneasy about it and might use aggression to keep doubters at bay).
- Retreat from expressing themselves and even from 4-H participation, for fear of being found out.
- Think that this is the way that 4-H is done, and continue with more deceitful behaviors.

The risk of allowing unethical behaviors is too high for us to condone this practice. On the other hand, evaluation of performance based on the 4-H record is based on a compact of trust that both the content and format of the record book are a true reflection of the members' work. For us in authority to second-guess authorship and performance whenever we have doubts can instill a culture of suspicion that is demoralizing the entire program.

Instead, we need to employ tenets of positive youth development. Each leader and parent teaches proper practices and ethics, lives by the codes, defers judgment, shows the merits of a trust relationship through example, focuses on the intrinsic rewards of learning, helps to interpret efforts that fall short of the mark in ways that encourage persistence, etc.

Members may never achieve the quality book that the adults could create for them, but the attitudes and attributes of an affirming learn-by-doing effort will be a far greater reward than a "perfect" book. We wager that they will value their own work much more and strive to improve upon it. That makes us all winners.
